Construction Insurance 101

Tuesday, April 21st | 8:30 – 12:00 pm

WHAT YOU WILL LEARN

This seminar is directed specifically for Contractors, Subcontractors, and Developers along with those working in the construction industry. We will build upon a basic knowledge of insurance and the coverages that are central to the construction industry. It is designed to assist those responsible for construction contracts, construction site supervision, and the overall management of construction insurance programs. Our focus will be on the special insurance needs related to construction projects and the typical issues related to insurance and claims that arise with construction exposures and activities.

PRESENTERS: WALT ISLER, LINDA LIRA, LYNNE SEVILLE

Walt Isler | Walt is an Account Executive in our Commercial Department, a Principal of our firm and a member of our Construction Practice Group. He specializes in the design and implementation of insurance programs for both general and specialty contractors. Walt has over 20 years experience in the insurance industry and holds the Chartered Property Casualty Underwriter (CPCU) and Construction Risk Insurance Specialist (CRIS) professional designations. He is a graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point, New York, and served five years in the United States Army.

Linda Lira | Linda is an Account Executive in our Construction Services Department with 29 years experience in the insurance industry. She assists in the review of bid specifications and construction contract documents to help identify potential exposures to loss and financial hardship arising out of the specific features of the construction project, and the insurance provisions contained in the contract documents which relate to project specific coverages including Builder's Risk. Linda and her associates also market and place Builder's Risk and Railroad Protective Liability Insurance policies for our firm.

Lynne Seville | Lynne is an Account Executive in our Commercial Department's Anchorage office and Principal of the firm. She serves as Account Executive and co-Account Executive for most of PS&F's large Alaska contractors. Lynne has over 25 years experience in insurance risk assessment and management. Lynne earned a Bachelor of Science Degree in Industrial Engineering, Business and Pre-Law from Arizona State University. She was named Safety Professional of the Year by both the local chapter and Regional Operating Committee of American Society of Safety Engineers. Lynne serves on the boards of: the Workers' Compensation Committee of Alaska, Girl Scouts of Alaska, Anchorage Rotary and the Alaska State Chamber of Commerce.
